What next?

Key questions to consider

1. What are you passionate about? What really interests you?
2. Which subjects do you most enjoy?
3. Which subjects are you good at?
4. What career do you want to pursue?
5. What subjects are on offer?

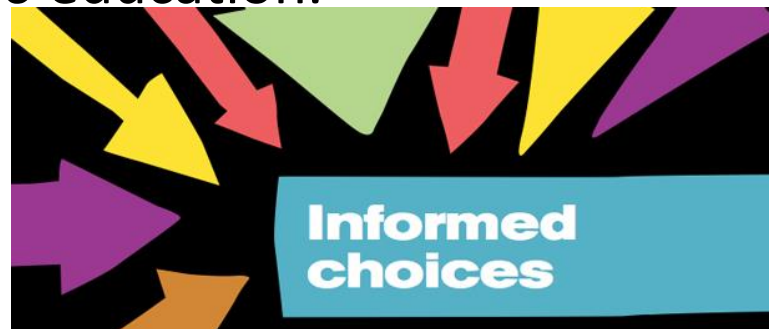

What could help you answer these questions?

- Remember that GCSE trial examinations are an important step and will give you an insight into what you're good at.
- Remember that making choices post 16 is a difficult decision and one that takes time.
- You are choosing your options for the next 2 years.

Being informed

“What you decide to study post-16 can have a major impact on what you can study at degree level. Whether or not you have an idea of the subject you want to study at university, having the right information now will give you more options when the time comes to make your mind up. The Informed Choices guide aims to help you make an informed decision when choosing your course for post-16 education.”

Entry Criteria

- Each student will calculate their own average points score (APS) based on all their GCSE results.
- The APS determines a student's pathway and the subjects they can choose.
- Trial exam grades are used for making offers and guidance discussion meetings help with choosing the right pathway.
